

Dive master training at BBdiver 3/6 weeks (depends on previous dive experience)

Bbdivers is a five star padi dive center specializing in go pro training. With over 20 years of experience we have trained quite a few dive master, all of them now at work somewhere in the world, and all of them proud bb dive master! We've built a reputation of being very thorough in our training, while at the same time having great fun and enjoying the diving days.

Koh Chang is a great place to spend some time and to dive, the famous HTMS Chang shipwreck brings us a lot of dive joy and is an amazing dive site attracting divers from all over the world.

Minimum requirements to start the DMT

- Min required logged dives 40 to start the training
- Min level rescue diver
- Efr or other first aid trained in the last year
- Medical statement of good health for diving

Short description of DM training

The recommended trainings time is 4 to 6 weeks, the trainee should have a min of 60 dives before the end of the training. All needed dives to finish are included in the DMT as are the necessary swimming pool sessions. The DMT trains as a dive guide, as an assistant for the instructor and to get ready for a diving job. Our dmt get to do all the training assisting with real students which is the best learning process. After a few weeks the trainee is practicing guiding independently, first with colleagues and by the end of the training with 'real customers'. All your time spent here is training, building experience, learning about the responsibilities of a dive professional and lots of fun..... Self-study is needed before the theory sessions, we will email the padi e-learning before you start the course.

What do you need?

- Dive equipment:
Every DMT should have a full set of dive equipment, you will need it anyway once you start working as DM. If you still have to buy equipment, feel free to mail us to receive a list of prices. We have secondhand equipment for sale as well, or it is possible to rent equipment (200 baht per day for trainees). Having your own equipment is recommended. For a good medium priced set of equipment, you should count about 60.000 baht (all incl.), you can go as high as you prefer to invest in some more 'flashy' dive stuff. If you buy second hand it comes around half this price or less, depending availability.
You will need a BCD, regulator set, suit, fins, mask, snorkel, compass, dive computer, knife and dive torch.
Out dmt get a reduction of 20% on new dive equipment.

